Management
control
systems are the formal and informal
structures put in place by a
business that
compare the
goals and
strategy of the organization

against the actual outcomes. In other words, it measures how well the functions of a business and the business as a whole perform and meet objectives.

This comparison is then reviewed and used to drive managerial decisions.
